PALM SUNDAY SERVICE AT NEWTOWN WAS VERY INSPIRING ONE FOR MEN

NEWTOWN, Apr. 15.—The Palm Sunday service of the Newtown Men's Meetings was a most inspiring and enjoyable one. The speaker was Henry J. Johnson, of Trenton, an active business man, associated with the Mechanics First National Bank of that city. Mr. Johnson is also a talented musician, and one of the leaders of the Judge Davis Bible Class of the First Baptist Church, Trenton, as well as a tenor soloist in the chorus connected with the class. He sang solo parts a few Sundays ago when the class attended the Newtown Men's Meetings.

Mr. Johnson took as his text the account of the Saviour's lamentation over the evils that were to befall Jerusalem, a city that did not know what belonged to its peace. "What belongs to our peace? Where do we get it? How do we keep it?" inquired the speaker. Ever since the World War, he said, there has been a desire for world peace. We sometimes think we have not secured it at all. The world has a wrong conception of peace. Jesus meant an abiding peace in the midst of the troubles of life. "In the world ye shall have tribulation, but I have overcome the world." Many persons seek their own interests, often at the expense of others. There is a tendency toward too much independence, tending toward license instead of liberty, in our country, and as the result this is said to be the most lawless nation on the globe.

Often the lack of peace in our own lives is the echo of what we have done, said Mr. Johnson. The Psalmist tells us, "Perfect peace have all they

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY DIES AT EDGELY HOME

James Francis Coyle, Bristol
High Student, Was Well Liked

ILL SEVERAL WEEKS

A 16-year-old boy, a student of Bristol high school, died at the home of relatives in Edgely, last evening, after a lengthy illness.

The deceased is: James Francis Coyle, son of James T. Coyle.

The youth had been suffering from heart trouble and complications. For about the past six weeks he had been bedfast. Yesterday he took a sudden turn for the worse, being claimed by death a few hours later.

The boy, who since the death of his mother, here, about four years ago, had resided with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, Woodside avenue, Edgely, is survived by his father; a sister, Bernadine; and one brother, Joseph.

The school-mates and chums of James found him a likable chap, and he had many friends. He was a member of the Edgely Boys' Club and a sophomore at Bristol high school.

Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed.

State News

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Apr. 15.—(INS)—Perryville, a little old village about six miles south of here, is seeing an old landmark pass with the razing of the Perryville Pig Iron Furnace, to make way for a new highway.

The furnace was built in 1855, utilizing the water power of Poho Poco Creek until steam was introduced two years later. Discovery of richer fields of ore in the Upper Michigan territory, spelled the doom of the furnace and for many years it has not been used, gradually falling, then, into disrepair.

Now it goes to make way for a new road. The first road through Perryville was built in 1747 and served as a military highway of importance from 1756 to 1761, when Fort Allen was garrisoned.

The old Indian Trail was replaced by the broader roads of the Colonials, eager to develop the new land, which promised riches. Greater discoveries lead to its disuse for a time and now the wealth wrested from the land is being used to convert old trails and old roads, into smooth highways over which fleet and high powered motor cars will rush at great speed—unmindful of the silent ghosts of the past.

that love thy law. If we feel that we are in touch with the Hand that rules the world, we shall have a feeling of peace. Both the love and the righteousness of God made necessary the sacrifice of Christ on Calvary. In righteousness we have our peace. If more of the nations exercised the righteous attitude, there would be a stronger cement for peace than love alone would afford.

Rev. T. N. Hyde presided over the meeting, and Rev. W. J. Bone, Rev. T. R. Waggoner and Rev. Frank Kates assisted in the devotions. A special treat was the singing and instrumental selections by H. E. McKinley, the talented Tennessee evangelist. Mr. McKinley and his wife and small son conducted evangelistic services in Newtown Hall about three years ago, the third of such revivals they had held in the East. Sunday night Mr. McKinley said he would conclude his series of services at Collingdale, Pa., the 36th since he was at Newtown. One of the numbers he furnished was a selection on the musical saw. He was accompanied by Miss Lena Lauble.

The last of the series of meetings will be held next Sunday—Easter Day—when the hour will be 3.30 instead of 3 o'clock. The speaker will be George H. Randall, of Philadelphia, active in the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and the Pocket Testament League. He has spoken before at the Newtown meetings, and is remembered as a talented and forceful speaker. The special musical numbers will be by a local male chorus. All men and boys are welcome.

SENATOR GRUNDY DRAWS FIRST POSITION ON BALLOT; LOCAL CLUB ENDORSES HIS CANDIDACY; CANDIDATE ADDRESSES LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Senator in Address Urges Selection of Delegates to National Convention Who Will Stand for The Principle of Protective Tariff to Aid Labor and Industry Alike — Says Present Tariff Bill is Not All That it Should Be.

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, candidate for the Republican nomination at the primary election, May 20th to succeed himself as United States Senator, won first position in the senatorial column on the ballot, yesterday.

The positions the various candidates' names will have on the ballot were determined by drawings held at the State Department in Harrisburg. Those for the major office at stake, in the order in which they will appear on the ballot, follow:

For U. S. Senator: Joseph R. Grundy, Webster G. Drew, James J. Davis, Francis H. Bohlen.

Senator Grundy's No. 1 position was drawn by a woman, Mrs. Esther Aund, of Harrisburg, employed in the office of the Secretary of the Senate. When it was time for Grundy's number to be drawn, Frank J. Gorman, secretary to Governor Fisher, remarked that it was the Senator's wish that a woman pull his number because "they are always lucky."

At a meeting of the Independent Club of Bristol held Sunday the candidacy of Senator Grundy was endorsed and resolution adopted. The resolution was made public today signed by Vincenzo LaRosa, president, and Peter Genco, leader. A copy is to be forwarded to the Senator.

The resolution reads: "We, the members of the Independent Club of the Fifth Ward of the Borough of Bristol go on record and endorse the candidacy of Senator Joseph R. Grundy, believing him to be the best available, best equipped and best informed man to represent Pennsylvania in the United States Senate.

"Our membership, totaling 140, represents approximately one hundred (100) Italian voters in Bristol and we have known Mr. Grundy for many years. We believe that a man of Mr. Grundy's type, who knows the needs of the working man, who is well versed on the tariff and who will fight for the industries of the state, will represent the laboring man in the halls of Congress better than any other individual before the public at this time. We appeal to all Italian voters to support his candidacy and to vote for him at the primary election on May 20th when his name will appear upon the Republican ballot."

Candidates for United States Senator and Governor whose names will be on the Republican ballot in the primary election on May 20th aired their views on various issues yesterday at a symposium under the auspices of the Republican Women of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

ANNOUNCE RULES FOR BOYS' POSTER CONTEST

Committee Ready to Impart
Information to Boys
Participating

EXPECT MANY ENTRIES

Announcement is hereby made that the poster contest will be conducted as usual this year, in connection with the Boys' Week exercises. The following rules and regulations will govern the contest, and the boys are urged to read them carefully, so that no mistakes will be made.

First: The poster must be original in design. In former contests the charge was sometimes made that the design of the winning poster had been copied from a picture or a magazine cover, and in consequence the judges this year will be extraordinarily strict, and throw out all posters which are under suspicion.

Second: The posters must contain the words, "Bristol Boys' Week, May 4-10, 1930." Heretofore, these were the only words that could be used on the poster, but this year the committee has decided upon some changes. These words must be used, but can be woven into the design in any manner which may appeal to the artist. Other words which may form a part of the picture, or help to emphasize Boys' Week, may also be used. Participants are cautioned, however, not to overdo the matter, and probably spoil an otherwise good drawing.

Third: The poster must be drawn on paper 14 inches by 17 inches. This rule will be strictly observed, and all posters which do not conform to this size will be thrown out.

Fourth: The posters must be completed and placed in the hands of Doron Green, chairman of the committee, on or before, Thursday evening, May 1st, at 9 o'clock.

The committee, which consists of Doron Green, 319 Radcliffe street; Joseph McIlvaine, 509 Radcliffe street, and Wesley Spencer, 241 Monroe street, will be glad to impart to the boys, any information about the contest, which is not clear to them.

Buy, Build and Live in Bristol

The tariff, prohibition, Sunday blue laws, legislation governing women and children in industry, the Public Service Commission and public utility corporations and unemployment were among the issues given consideration by the various spellbinders as they mounted the rostrum before an audience that packed the ballroom of the Warwick Hotel.

Senator Joseph R. Grundy, candidate to succeed himself at Washington, stressed the tariff as an issue in the campaign and advocated the protective principle as a Governmental policy.

Senator Grundy advised the women that the tariff bill now in conference committee "is not going to be what it ought to be," and recommended a renewal of the fight to impress upon the next national convention the necessity of tariff revision.

Senator Grundy started the proceedings by announcing that as far as he was aware there is but one issue before the voters—the tariff.

"There is only one issue as far as Pennsylvania is concerned as far as I know," said the Senator. "That, of course, is the tariff and I believe the tariff is the rock on which all the prosperity of the United States has been built."

The McCumber-Fordney bill, under which the country is now operating, the Senator stated, was framed at a time when it was impossible to get real information on foreign values, with the result that it has proved inadequate as a protective measure.

Because of this, he stated, "creeping paralysis has been going over industries in Pennsylvania and has made tariff revision necessary."

Senator Grundy attacked the flexible provision on the ground that as often as not its application is in the hands of "theorists" who have little practical knowledge of tariff matters. "As a Republican and a protectionist," said the Senator, "I say that the pending bill is not going to be what it ought to be. And I say that as Republicans we should see that for the next National Convention we select as delegates men who will stand for the principle of the protective tariff to aid labor and industry alike."

He urged, too, that the party go on record for a tariff bill without the flexible clause.

"This is better," he stated, "than leaving it to so-called experts who may be of any party and might hold any sort of theory on the tariff in general."

DISTRIBUTION CENSUS NOW BEING TAKEN

Enumerator at Work and Expects to Finish in About
One Month

DATA IS IMPORTANT

Census of distribution and manufacturing is being taken in this territory. It includes all manufacturing establishments not reporting for 1929 and all wholesale and retail establishments are to be canvassed.

The enumerator has been at work for about one week and it is presumed that the entire work in Bristol will be completed within a month.

The information is for statistics only and is absolutely confidential. It is compulsory to furnish the information which the Government requires.

In response to the wide-spread demand in the business world for complete and accurate statistics covering the vast field of wholesale and retail trade, the Bureau of the Census, under the authorization of Congress, is taking the first Census of Distribution in connection with the 1930 decennial enumeration.

Astute and broad-visioned business men have been aware for a long time that a statistical picture of the marketing processes in all lines of merchandising must be obtained before business generally can be organized so as to reduce waste and periods of depression. Ample statistical information has been available for years on agriculture and manufacturing, the production sources, but the paucity of data on wholesaling and retailing is hampering and halting production in its efforts toward efficiency. Partially, at least, as the result of having so much more information on production, that part of the business world has progressed in efficiency much more rapidly than has distribution.

The average output per worker in production has increased 85 per cent since the beginning of the century and 34 per cent since the termination of the World War. No comparable figures are available concerning the efficiency strides in the distributive field, but the fact that production is taking a smaller and distribution a larger

RELEASE ROPER FROM PRISON AND REDUCE ORDER

Bristol Man Out After Serving Four Months in County Jail

MUST SUPPORT HIS WIFE

Bought $3,600 Automobile
But Could Not Pay
$15 Weekly

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 15.—Judge Hiram H. Keller yesterday released Theodore Roper, of Bristol, from the Bucks County Prison where he has been for the past four months for failing to comply with a non-support order of $15 a week, and reduced the order to $8 a week.

It was testified that Roper was in the arrears several hundred dollars. His wife, Mrs. Mabel Roper, charged that her husband when he was out of prison had enough money to buy a $3600 automobile and spend considerable time at the seashore. She said that she did not want him sent to jail but thought that a threat of jail might result in his paying the support order. The $8 order is for the support of Mrs. Roper and one child. Judge Keller informed Roper that when he earned more money he would have to pay more. Roper was making $45 a week when the court made the original order but he later lost a position and had to work for $22 a week. When he became ill in the arrears he was arrested.

James R. Power, of 5135 Baltimore avenue, Philadelphia, pleaded guilty before Judge Samuel E. Shull yesterday to a charge of driving while drunk. He was fined $200 and costs.

William Tyrrell, of 506 Crown street, Morrisville, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk. He was directed by Judge Shull to pay a fine of $100 to the county of Bucks and was placed on probation for one year, with prison sentence suspended.

George Knott, of Philadelphia, son of a police officer, applied to the court yesterday for a parole. He was sentenced on an arson charge some time ago. The court deferred action on the petition.

Harold Burroughs, Doylestown, convicted of a liquor law and automobile violation was granted a parole yesterday by Judge Keller.

LIQUOR CASES BEFORE BUCKS COUNTY JUDGES

A. J. Stallone, Bristol, Gets Off With Very Light
Sentence

LEVINE GOES TO JAIL

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 15.—A. J. Stallone, 932 Jefferson avenue, Bristol, pleaded guilty before Judge Shull yesterday and was fined $100 and costs for possession of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

Stallone's place was raided several weeks ago on order of the Court after Frank Woodington had named the place as one in Bristol where liquor could be purchased. The raid was made by Chief Jones of the Bristol police.

Samuel Lavine, 564 Bellevue avenue, Trenton, N. J., pleaded guilty before Judge Keller to a charge of transporting intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes.

About two weeks ago Pennsylvania State Police nabbed Lavine after a spirited auto chase over back roads in the vicinity of South Langhorne. The police said they found in the rear of Lavine's car about 20 quarts of alleged assorted liquors, which he claimed he was "delivering for a friend."

Judge Hiram Keller sent Lavine to jail for 30 days yesterday because the defendant told the Court he was not a bootlegger and the judge replied

Six Suspects Taken Into Custody in Walters Shooting

DETROIT, Apr. 15.—"Something's going to pop."

From the crime-stained heart of "gangland" where the brutal murder of Jimmy Walters, beer baron and reputed ally of George "Bugs" Moran, was concocted, this startling message fraught with the greatest possibilities, emanated today to strike new terror into its haunted and hunted habitues. Cornered in an alley near his home late Sunday night, Walters was "put on the spot" between a cross fire of barking gangland guns.

The killing of Walters, police believe, is an echo of the attempt in January to assassinate Police Inspector Henry J. Garvin, former head of the crime and bomb squad. Walters, police contend, knew too much about the shooting of Garvin.

Six suspects have been taken into custody by police. Four are believed to be from Chicago.

ATTRACTIVE WEDDING AT TULLYTOWN HOME

Miss Anna May Burton Becomes Bride of John Killian

BOTH ARE KNOWN HERE

Saturday afternoon a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burton, of Tullytown, when their daughter, Miss Anna May Burton became the bride of John Killian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Killian, also of Tullytown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Young, of Burlington.

The ceremony took place in the living room of the Burton home, amid a bank of palms, ferns and blooming plants. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Violet Burton and the best man was Leonard Killian, brother of the groom.

The bride looked attractive in a white lace dress, made sleeveless, low neckline, and was trimmed with white satin. With this were worn white slippers and stockings, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white rosebuds.

Miss Violet Burton was attired in a tan silk gown, with slippers and stockings to match, and carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

After the ceremony a supper was served to about thirty guests. The dining room was prettily decorated for the occasion. Later in the evening the happy couple left for a honeymoon to be spent in New York City. The bride wore as her traveling costume a blue silk dress trimmed with tan, brown hat and coat, and brown slippers and stockings. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Killian will make their home with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burton.

Mr. Killian is employed at Rohm & Haas Company in Bristol, and prior to Mrs. Killian's marriage, she was employed in the office of Montgomery Ward Company in Bristol. Both are well known and have hosts of friends.

OPINION SHOWS COUNCIL LACKS BILL BOARD CONTROL

Borough Must Be Zoned First,
According to Solicitor
Howard I. James

NEW BRIDGE WANTED

Over 200 Citizens Petition For Span Over Adams Creek
At Wood Street

Borough Council received an opinion from Borough Solicitor Howard I. James, last night, in which it was stated that at present Council has no jurisdiction over the erection of billboards in Bristol.

If jurisdiction is desired ordinances will have to be enacted creating zones and making restrictions for each zone.

It was decided by Council to refer the entire matter to the ordinance committee for study. It was suggested that perhaps the establishment of a building line would also be advisable.

Contract for the collection of dry garbage was awarded to Stewart Steele for the sum of $185 per month, which is the price now paid. There was one other bidder, Andrew Sova, but he failed to procure a bondsman. His bid was $1800 a year.

Agreement was entered into with the Keystone Aircraft Corporation which gives the borough an easement for a surface water drain to carry the water from the underpass which is to be cut at the Green Lane crossing of the P. R. R.

An ordinance was enacted in connection with this agreement.

Police committee reported 22 arrests with the following dispositions: Fined, 3; held for court, 11; discharged, 8. One are light reported out and 17 incandescents. Forty-one tramps given lodging and six doors found open after hours.

Plumbers bonds of John F. Smoyer, with Walter F. Leedom as surety, and Roy Houser, with George P. Bailey as surety, were both approved.

Request for permission to erect a sign at 143 Otter street was referred to Street and Highway Committee, with power to act.

Numerous residents of Benson Place asked Council to resurface the street and place a sign thereon. Referred to Street and Highway Committee with power to act.

William E. Doron asked to be relieved of keeping the Market street wharf in repair. Mr. Doron's lease has expired and he does not desire to renew it with the repair provision incorporated. Referred to Finance and Public Property Committee, with power to act.

Some 200 residents of the Fifth Ward sent a petition to Council requesting that a bridge be built over Adams Hollow Creek at Wood street. The matter was referred to Street and Highway Committee for consideration and to report back to Council.

Councilmen present were: Wagner, Winter, Williams, Headley, Warner, Morris, Schmidt, Vandegriff, Myers, Fallon, Duffy, Barrett, Fry, Spezzano, Winslow, Johns, Zebley.

DISCREDITED POLITICS

Major post-war developments in Europe are seen by Owen D. Young as a conflict between two forces, which he personified as Politics, the proud, showy, temperamental woman of the stage, and Economics, her humble kitchen maiden, who did all the drudgery, helped her mistress out of difficult places and got none of the applause.

It was Politics, said Mr. Young, who wrote the Versailles treaty and fixed Germany's reparations bill at 132 billion marks. Politics put the French army in the Ruhr, and could not get it out; Politics initiated terrific currency inflation in Germany, and did not know how to stop it. Then Economics came forward and drafted the Dawes plan. The soldiers began to leave the Ruhr; inflation was stopped, and Germany began to recover.

Politics and Economics were again in conflict as soon as it became necessary to work out a permanent settlement to supplant the Dawes plan, which was a temporary arrangement. Politics and Economics were in conflict in the proposal to discharge the war debts.

Concerning present political tendencies in the United States that seek to place the rest of the world at an economic disadvantage, Mr. Young observed:

"Let no man think that the living standards of America can be permanently maintained at a measurably higher level than those of the other civilized countries. Either we shall lift theirs to ours, or they will drag ours down to theirs."

ANOTHER CROP SURPLUS

Despite declining commodity markets and a general feeling of economic uncertainty, farmers are going into the new season with a production program similar to that of recent years. The bureau of agricultural economics at Washington estimates that the total acreage of principal crops, exclusive of cotton, will be about two per cent above the acreage of the same crops harvested in 1929.

Knowing that surplus 1929 crops have forced the bottom out of their market—the general commodity price level has fallen to a point eight or ten per cent below that of a year ago and to the lowest levels since 1921-22—agriculturists are yet going ahead planting still more acreage and counting another surplus, another price drop.

It is generally admitted that unless the American farmer can be persuaded to desist from producing surpluses the farm relief experiment is doomed to end in an economic smash-up. And thus far he has shown neither willingness nor intention to cooperate with the farm board in its crop curtailment program. Perhaps it is too much to expect cooperation at this early stage of the experiment.

From the farm board's viewpoint the attitude of the farmers must be most disheartening, for the board finds its first admonition ignored and violated. And yet it must have felt that the promise of stabilized prices held forth by the farm relief program would encourage an actual, though slight, expansion of acreage. That was something every student of the farm situation predicted at every step of the farm relief debate.

The roller skating rink at Hulmeville Park was opened last night, and skating will take place four nights each week. The rink is being operated by Edwin Rath, who has conducted similar amusements in Trenton and Burlington, N. J.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected at the April business meeting of the Epworth League held in the M. E. Church last evening. The group comprises: President, Miss Elma E. Haefner; first vice-president, Charles Smith; second vice-president, Arthur Kaufman; third vice-president, Miss Harriet Cox; fourth vice-president, Miss Elizabeth Foster; secretary, Miss Florence Everitt; treasurer, Miss Clara L. Hlick. Refreshments were served and games indulged in. At the home of Mrs. Helen Hlick, Green street, the Hulmeville Women's Christian Temperance Union will conduct a business meeting Friday evening.

The tennis court at the rear of the Methodist Church property is being conditioned. The court space has been lengthened and widened, and when work is finished the surface is expected to be better than it has been for the past few years.

CHAPTER I

The man on the mosquito-netted bed slowly opened his eyes and at once was painfully aware he had been tremendously drunk. His head ached as only dead alcohol can cause a head to ache. His throat burned as though a flame dwelt there.

With slow, uncertain vision he took in his whereabouts, discovering that he was in his bed at the little New Guinea settlement's one hotel. The mosquito-net had been tucked in carefully about him. The open doorway made a frame for an oblong glimpse of smooth sea blue like sapphires, and tall palms edging a beach crossed by green and flowering vines; and from the angle of the palm-shadows lying on the sand-like purple fingers he knew it for early morning. The air was laden with the fresh odor of the morning sea. Along the beach natives called one to another desultorily, and out from the shore a canoe man chanted a fishing-song.

Then came a sound which startled the man on the bed and told him he was not alone—the sound of a woman's sobbing, part-suppressed; and, turning his head, he saw, sitting near the bed, the have cried." She paused, and he saw that pain lived deeply in her eyes. "Perhaps I did cry."

"At daylight I went back. You were all quiet enough then—stretched on the sand, asleep. I had some natives carry you here."

"I say, that was very good of you," he murmured.

"Then I put you to bed."

"You—yourself?"

"You've slept, like a dead man, twice round the clock," she went on hurriedly. Then:

"You were carrying a good deal of money, weren't you?"

"Yes—about six hundred pounds—the money I got for my gold-dust, you know. Why?"

"Because you haven't a cent now."

Shocked almost to complete sobriety, he sat up, asking what she meant.

"As you lay unconscious on the beach you were robbed," said Stella.

"That's the way I reckon it out. Now, lie down again." She strove to press him back on the bed. He resisted her efforts easily.

"Are you sure?"

"Quite sure," she told him. "Please don't get excited. You must rest."

"And now I'm completely broke! It's a beautiful mess!"

brown-haired daughter of the house, sitting with head bowed in hands.

"I am sorry, Miss Blackney," he said. "I am ashamed of myself—utterly."

Ordinarily, David Wade would have seen little of which to be violently ashamed in the fact that he should have celebrated his arrival at Samora from the gold-fields of the interior with a drinking-bout. After so many months of primordial conditions, of isolation and dangers and hardships, arrival in civilization demanded celebration—even the civilization of Samora, which with only a hundred or two white residents and wholly devoid of theatres, sports, and most social amenities, was but a pretended civilization, and left celebrators little to do save drink.

But in this case it was different. For some unexplained reason, Stella Blackney had endeavored to end the celebrating before it had gone very far, with the utmost sincerity pleading with him to cease; and when he refused to take her seriously, not being in a condition to take anything seriously, she closed the bar to him and his companions—a schooner-captain and mate who after a long spell at sea, were also celebrating arrival in this civilization of sorts. Whereupon, wondering at this refusing of good business, and declaring the girl a temperance reformer in strange guise, the three of them went along the beach to the place of a "storekeeper" licensed to sell liquor wholesale, and continued their bout among the palms.

Wade wished now he had taken her advice, and told her so. She seated herself again, and his brightening intelligence told him she was making strenuous effort at the full regaining of her self-control.

"I must have been pretty bad," he said, with an unsatisfactory attempt at a smile.

"You were indeed." Despite the directness of the remark, there was a certain colorlessness in the tone of it.

He passed a hand wearily across his brow.

"A regular binge! I don't remember going to bed last night, or even coming back here."

"It wasn't last night," said Stella. "It was the night before."

And then, unheeding his astonishment, she said she had been told by natives that the three white newcomers were on the beach in front of the store, a case of liquor between them, shouting, singing, dancing, madder with liquor than ever they had seen white men before, and that some time during the night she had gone to see for herself.

"I can't tell how it hurt me to see you like that," she said. "I could

"Who was it?" he demanded harshly, and swung his feet to the floor. "Have you any idea?"

"O'Shane."

"The storekeeper!"

She inclined her head slightly. "You think he took it?" Wade asked.

"I'm not certain, of course," Stella answered, in the same half-loud tone. "I didn't actually see him take it. But I—"

"She lowered her eyes a moment."

"I happen to know the kind of man he is," she went on. "He—well, he would not be above giving you bad grog, purposely. . . . I'll send in a boy with some breakfast for you."

"I don't want to eat," he called after her. "You are quite sure it's gone—all of it? There's nothing in my clothes?"

At once he regretted the question; it seemed to him there was a touch of indelicacy in thus alluding to the fact that she had put him to bed.

But without hint of embarrassment she told him she was sure, that she had made careful search.

"But I have not inquired on foot in a quiet way, and perhaps you will get it back. Mea, while you must take things easily and not worry. I want you to get well as quickly as you can," she ended, with a little forced smile.

"That is very good of you, Miss Blackney," said Wade. "But advice to take things easily is hard to accept. That money was my all. My gold-claim there in the interior is exhausted, and I came here intending to go on to the Solomons or somewhere, and having a try at planting or trading for a change. I am not a very successful miner, you know."

He gave an ironical laugh.

"And now I'm completely broke! It's a beautiful mess!"

The girl nodded her head in an assent charged with grief.

"It is indeed! Oh, why did you go on this bout?"

"I—I so wanted you not to. More than you can have any idea!"—this last as though she said it to herself.

For the moment he was less concerned with the loss of his money than he was with the fact of the girl's distress. He was feeling too ill. Besides, women only upset a man's peace of mind, and he didn't want his peace of mind upset.

But after a little reflection he decided that it was a love that was at the bottom of her concern. It seemed to be something deeper and more profound, if anything could be deeper and more profound than love.

For a time he sat there, endeavoring to smooth the tangle of his thoughts, and failing utterly.

ASK US--DON'T GUESS

If insurance automatically adjusted itself to changing conditions, you could forget to ask questions.

But your fire insurance policy is a definite contract which cannot be stretched here or pinched there to cover losses after a fire has occurred.

A fire insurance policy which exactly fits your needs is just as important as shoes which must exactly fit your feet—and guessing at either is almost sure to prove disastrous.

It is the business of your agent to fit your insurance to your needs—to foresee what losses could occur. Your agent is an insurance specialist and knows the exact requirements of each individual risk.

A few questions asked now might make a big difference if fire occurred tomorrow. Don't guess that your policy gives you full protection—make sure.

We welcome an opportunity to answer your questions regarding fire insurance.

BUSINESS MAN ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT KONJOLA

Well-Known Resident of Kennett Square Eager to Tell What New Medicine Did for Him

MR. ARTHUR B. MARTIN

"I welcome this opportunity to tell what Konjola did for me," said Mr. Arthur B. Martin, 219 South Broad street, Kennett Square, near West Chester. "A long and serious illness left me with a badly impaired stomach. The plainest food seemed soon after eating and I bloated and belched until heartburn and heart palpitation became serious. I had little or no appetite, and was losing weight and strength. I became discouraged and unfit for my work as plumbing contractor."

"I required just four weeks for this great medicine to restore me to better health than I had known in years. I have an excellent appetite and am gaining steadily in weight, strength and vitality. I am no longer troubled with sour stomach, bloating or belching and heart palpitation. Shortness of breath and headaches are a thing of the past. I can never say enough in praise of Konjola and I certainly urge all sufferers to give this great medicine a fair trial."

Konjola works with the important functional organs of the body. It drives the poisons from the system, regulates the organs of elimination, and produces glorious and abundant relief. Konjola should be taken from six to eight weeks in order to attain the best results.

Konjola is sold in Bristol, Pa., at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—(Adv.)

Millions in Special Taxes

The buyers of insurance in the United States indirectly but actually contribute a vast sum—approximately $30,000,000 annually—through taxes additional to the regular taxes paid by insurance companies in common with other lines of industry. This money is a burden upon the premium of the policyholder, notwithstanding it is collected from the company.

The original purpose of special taxes upon insurance was to maintain state supervision of the business, but such supervision uses but four cents of each dollar, and the balance—about $77,000,000—goes into the general funds of the states.

These special taxes of the state and the taxes which insurance companies pay in common with all other business concerns, and owners of property, as well as their substantial taxes to the Federal Government, are factors in the cost of fire insurance.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has adopted the following resolution:

"... Special State Taxes now levied on Policyholders through insurance companies should not be considered as a source of general revenue, but should be reduced to the total in each state which will adequately support such state's departmental supervision."

The Stock Fire Insurance companies, which transact by far the greater portion of the fire insurance-business of the country, want you to realize this condition and its effect upon the cost of your fire insurance.

Liquor Cases Before Bucks County Judges

that he did not believe that story. Lavine was also fined $200 and costs, while others arraigned yesterday on liquor charges got no jail terms.

Before sentence was passed Lavine told Judge Keller that the liquor he had in his auto when captured by State Police was being carted to a party to which he had been invited at Somerton, Pa. The court promptly asked the name of the host at the party that invited Lavine, and the latter said he did not know the name.

Included among 50 indictments returned by the Federal Grand Jury at Trenton, N. J., as a result of the sensational liquor raids at Atlantic Highlands and other points along the Atlantic Coast last fall, was one against Samuel Lavine, of 564 Bellevue avenue, according to U. S. District Attorney Philip Forman. Lavine is declared to be implicated as a salesman for the Highlands group.

When deputies from Chief Deputy Marshal Snowden's office went to Lavine's home to arrest him yesterday, they learned that he had been given a jail sentence on another liquor charge in Bucks County Court at Doylestown. Mr. Forman stated that a detainer would be filed at the Doylestown Jail and when his sentence expires he will be arrested on a Federal warrant and brought here.

share of the consumer's dollars than before the war makes it quite clear that distribution has not increased in efficiency so rapidly as production. It is believed, therefore, that the distribution can be improved in the basis of the information which will come from this census. Improvements in distribution will help the merchants, manufacturers, and farmers, and, in the end, will also prove beneficial to the consuming public.

For the purpose of the census, the word "distribution" refers to marketing processes, in accordance with the general business usage of the term. Reports will be obtained from all retailers, all wholesalers, and all other classes of distributing agencies, including all repair and service establishments for automobile and automobile tires, parts and accessories. Stores and other sales branches maintained by manufacturers also are regarded as distribution establishments, and reports from them likewise will be obtained. The principal classes of establishments to be covered by the census follow:

Retail stores of all kinds, gasoline filling stations, automobile repair shops, butchers and abattoirs, custom and merchant tailors and milliners, co-operative buying and selling organizations, wholesalers and jobbers, chain-store warehouses, commission merchants, grain elevators, auction companies, brokers, selling agents, manufacturers' agents, manufacturers' sales branches, supply houses and equipment dealers, importers, export merchants, milk dealers, restaurants, hotels and construction contractors.

Every business concern in the country will be canvassed. Each dealer will be asked a number of questions that will tend to reveal essential data. No attempt, however, will be made to discover the amount of profit.

Inquiries contained in the questionnaire are designed to secure the following information:

1. Data covering the description of the establishments, including name; location, character of organization; degree of service, namely, whether it is a self-service store, a cash-and-carry store, or a store rendering delivery service; and the number of stores owned by the organization reporting.

2. A description of the kind of business and the principal lines of goods handled.

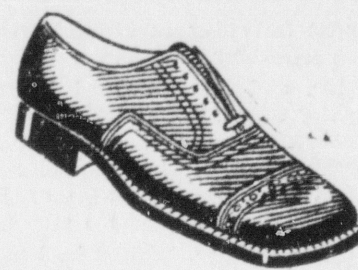

3. The number of persons employed, and the aggregate wages and rental paid for the year.

4. Total value of goods on hand on December 31, 1929.

5. Sales of merchandise during 1929, divided into cash and credit and in many cases broken down by commodities or groups of commodities.

In cities of more than 10,000 population, the Census of Distribution is being taken by special enumerators, but in the country stores and other establishments in rural districts, it will be taken by the regular census enumerators handling the censuses of population and agriculture.
